

Temporary woodland pools are the breeding areas for increasingly rare animals throughout Michigan, particularly amphibians like salamanders and frogs. The Nature Conservancy of Michigan is a nonprofit organization that works to protect rare habitat, such as this wetland at the 144-acre Jonathon Woods preserve near Lapeer. To join, call or write to the address below. Photo by Alan Chamley.

12/12/99

For FDA: Docket # 97N-0074

To reduce foodborne illness, please prohibit the practice of "forced molting" in hens. Forced molting greatly increases egg contamination with salmonella poisoning. THANKS! Joyce Janicki

The Nature Conservancy
2840 E. Grand River
East Lansing, MI 48801

Ms. Joyce Janicki
22493 Milner St.
St Clair Shrs, MI 48081

4846 '99 DEC 20 19:34

FDA/Dockets Manage. Branch
(HFA-305)
5630 Lusher Dr.

Rm. 1061

Rockville, MD 20850

97N-0074

C203